

Identity Recovery

Security researchers say that roughly half of U.S. adults had their personal information hacked in a single year, and that a victim typically does not become aware of the identity theft until it has been going on for six months.

Once an identity theft has been discovered, victims can spend months or even years – and thousands of dollars – to recover their identities. Most people have no plans for such an unpleasant surprise: They don't know where to start, nor understand what it takes to restore their credit to pre-theft status and safeguard their name.

Identity Recovery coverage is designed to help victims reclaim their identity. It provides policyholders with the means and assistance to regain control of their identity and credit file.

Professional help to reclaim your identity

Unlike identity restoration service vendors, this coverage provides out-of-pocket expense reimbursement and personal services to help identity theft victims restore their credit to pre-theft status. It goes beyond credit to detect identity fraud that wouldn't show up in credit-related data. Identity recovery services are not subject to a deductible and do not count against the annual aggregate limit. These services include:

- Toll-free help line with counselors to answer questions and provide information on identity theft loss detection and prevention.

- Access to a professional identity restoration firm that will work with the victim through the entire identity restoration process.
- Case management performed by licensed investigators with experience to dig deeper.
- Option to use Limited Power of Attorney to act on the victim's behalf.
- Reimbursement for a broad range of eligible expenses — including lost wages, elder and child care, and mental health counseling.

Sources of identity theft

From social media to stolen mail, the risk of identity theft is all around us. Some of more common ways personal information is taken include:

- Stolen purses & wallets
- Stolen mail
- Dumpster diving
- Telemarketing scams
- Computer viruses and worms
- Spamming or phishing schemes
- Spyware, adware and malware
- Keystroke loggers
- File-sharing
